Editorial

On February 6th, Turkey was struck by a devastating earthquake in Kahraman Maraş. We are deeply saddened by this tragedy and have been working to heal both individually and as OzU community. Due to the earthquake, the opening of the Spring semester was postponed until February 20th with online courses being offered.

We believe that with careful effort, patience, and hope, we can overcome this dark time. As Turkey is prone to earthquakes, taking measures based on scientific knowledge is essential. In line with this belief, the Architecture and Design Club organized a talk with Prof. Dr. Naci Görür, moderated by Ömer Karadağ, a member of our faculty.

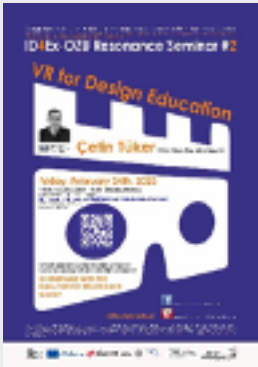

The event had an exceptional turnout, and Prof. Naci Görür shared valuable insights on living in an earthquake-prone country and the necessary precautions that need to be taken.
